There's something a bit gross about reading the City Council meeting minutes and watching almost every council member support a higher property tax rate, and in another meeting also saying we need to buy a Side by Side with city tax dollars. Is South Weber City really so rugged that there's that many areas inaccessible to most full sized vehicles already owned by the City? I understand a side by side might make it a bit more convenient at times to get to small areas, but the number mentioned in one of the meetings was something like $64,000. I assume that's to outfit the side by side with whatever we think is a necessary accessory for the fire department, but that feels like a perfect example of government spending that we've all (I guess not all) grown to despise.

I greatly appreciate the fire department and I also appreciate the City Council for their work here in South Weber, so I am not fond of sending in comments that give an impression that I don't appreciate them. However, just because we may have budgeted to waste money doesn't mean we're beholden to that. We can rethink our options and make better choices. I would love an ATV at my house to push snow in the winter time, but I don't buy one because it's not a need. It may be nice, but just because something would be nice doesn't need we need to spend tax dollars on it. Raising taxes for the umpteenth time on our citizens while also discussing such an expenditure has quite a "Joe Biden Administration" ring to it.
